The students did a wonderful job getting up in front of their peers and presenting their book reports. Some students did their non-fiction reports on animals, famous landmarks, and historical events. We are proud of all the work they put into their reports.

To continue their study of the Composition of the Earth, the students learned about the different types of mountains and their formation. They learned about volcanoes, fold mountains, dome mountains, fault mountains, and gorges. They will have the opportunity to practice making a fold mountain using felt layers.

Math

The students have started learning about various forms of measurements. The first years have been learning about measuring in inches, feet, and yards. The second years have been learning about measuring in meters and to the quarter inch. The third years have been learning about area and using coordinate grids.

Language

In language, the third years have continued their study of sentence analysis. They have been learning about the adverbials for when, where, and how. The first years have been learning more about verbs. The second years have been learning about how to structure paragraphs.

Cultural

In cultural, the students have been learning about the Five Kingdoms of Life. They have been using mute classification charts to learn about the classification of animals. They are classifying vertebrates and invertebrates.

Group Snack

Thank you again to the families that have helped to donate our group snack each week. The students enjoyed prepping and serving English muffin pizzas. Group snack is a great way for students to work collaboratively and learn how to portion food and use measurements. It is a great practical life skill.

Looking Ahead...

Author's Tea

The Author's Tea is quickly approaching. The students have been working on creating different types of poetry and they have chosen one that they would like to present to friends and family. We encourage you to join our event on Friday, April 26, 2024 from 2pm-3pm in the American Room. Please be on the lookout for a sign up sheet that will be sent out so families can sign up to donate food to our event.
